A Night of Terror.

"Awful excitement was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "Although she must soon die from Pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung diseases. Only 50c and $1

W. H. RANDALL DEAD.

End Came Suddenly at Tempe Where
The Body was Buried.

All the town knows that William H. Randall is dead; for no resident of Nogales was better known. The end came last Saturday afternoon in Tempe. It was only the Thursday night previous to the day of his death that several of his friends accompanied him to the train. He took his dog "Fitz," the faithful companion of several years, —on his last journey. No one then believed death was so near, although the marks of the end were upon him.
The journey was undertaken for the benefit of his health. He arrived at his destination Friday morning. The following afternoon he passed to sleep forever. His body was buried Monday in the cemetery at Tempe. A telegram to E. D. Miller of THE VIDETTE, for years, a close friend to "Billy" did not reach him in time to leave Sunday night, but he left Monday, and returned this morning.

When the intelligence of Mr. Randall's death became current Monday morning, his friends were surprised rather than shocked. "We did not think it would come so soon," they said. With everyone who knew "Billy" Randall, memory of him will be pleasant. Always just and upright, he was a man who commanded the absolute respect of the community.
His energy the past few years of failing health overmatched his strength and he frequently deprecated this disparagement; but like a man he bore the affliction he called asthma, and frequently to his friends he referred in grim humor to his ultimate passing.
Only two or three days before his departure he was asked if he had received his invitation to a certain social affair.

"Invitation to a ball" he said,
"I'd better send out invitations to my funeral." This indicates that he realized his doom, but that he did not know that the hand of death was about to grasp him is indicated by plans he was making for the future.
Poor "Fitz" is an orphan now; his grief is pitiful. Since "Billy" preferred to live alone, "Fitz" was his constant companion, and possessed brute intelligence to such a marked degree as to occasion wonder. "Fitz" will not suffer, however, He may mourn his master; but he is not alone.
